“ *Uncle Clyde,
There are not enough words to express my love and gratitude for everything you have been and done for me through the years. I don't think I would be the same person I am today if it wasn't for you being the strong and stable role model for me in my preteen years. You have always been my constant that didn't stray from the straight and narrow. Although hard at times, it always came from a place of love. I will forever be thankful for everything you were in my life. I will miss you so very much. I hope you are on some beach, somewhere, Under a big umbrella casting shade over your chair. Where palm trees are growing and a warm breeze is blowing I'll picture you right there. On some beach, some where.,, Til I see you again <3 all my love!*

“ My best friend..

*Allow me to tell you of my best friend,
He was my Dad.
He taught me things about life in a way I could understand.
He lifted me when I would stumble and fall,
He whooped my but when I had done wrong.
He took us fishing camping and on hikes,
He even bought me my first dirt bike.
He worked hard each and every day,
For us to have things with his hard earned pay.
We didn't have much but we had love,
He could be mean as a wild cat or calm as a dove.
Dad was a mechanic his favorite trade,
He loved engines of all sizes and grade.
He helped out anyone who he found was in need,
He never turned down a chance for a good deed.
He taught me to work hard an in it take pride,
Whether I flipped burgers or for a living or gave uber rides.
He taught me that a marriage is not an easy task,
It takes work, love, trust without masks.
Dad I will miss you as i grow old,
I will never forget all the things to me you told.
My Dad would shout and curse,
He had a temper that could make things worse.
I also watched him laugh and cry,
I've seen him strong while broken inside.
But he would keep his head up high,
Look at us boys and smile real wide.
When things looked glum and bleak,
He usually would go fishing to find some peace.
I miss you Dad for now you've gone,
But I know for all you've taught me I shall be strong.
You have shown me much and raised me well,
I shall remember to stop for the flowers to smell.*

*You have shown me so much about life,
I shall forever cherish our memories without strife.
Yes I am sad and have cried for days,
I will miss you Dad forever and always.
When you left I felt a terrible loss,
But know I now you are better off.
For now you are with family once again.
You are in Heaven where there is no end.
I hold fast and can not wait,
To go fishing again with you within the pearly gates.
So now I shall finish my life that you and mom started,
For we shall see each again when I am departed.*

LOVE YOU DAD!!

“ Clyde Lewis Moore you will missed by so many. Although I never was able to meet you in person, speaking with you over the phone, and playing jokers wild on the internet allowed me the honor of getting a insight into the person you were. I still laugh at when you told me to put a bar of soap in a sock, and beat the crap out of your son to straighten him out!
Rest and in Peace high on that mountain my friend.
